OUR MISSION

is to preserve and help people use the documents of forest history. The Forest History Society identifies, collects, interprets, and disseminates historical information on the relationship of humans and forests, contributing to informed natural resource decision making.

The Alvin J. Huss Archival Program enables FHS to accession valuable historic forest history collections, including the enormous Weyerhaeuser Company archival collection. The first shipment of materials and records filled 31 pallets. Our recently launched web portal "Repeat Photography for Working Forests and Sustainability," is gaining attention by providing access to students, teachers, journalists, and others of before-and-after photos depicting landscape change. And nothing provided more effective outreach than our first hour-long documentary, America's First Forest: Carl Schenck and the Asheville Experiment that was broadcast over 1,200 times on 350 PBS stations in 43 states. Conservatively, over two million viewers have now watched the program.

We are also excited about what is on the horizon. During the last year, through a collaborative effort including FHS board and staff, we are now ready to launch a new website design that will be mobile friendly and provide greater access to our databases, historic photos, and digital materials.

Along with a fresh look online, the Society is introducing its new logo. The logo has evolved five times during the Society's 71 years, and none more effectively captures the Society's dual role to understand the past for its impact on the future than the new design.

It will come as no shock to most of our members that the Society has been in a not-so-quiet phase of a campaign to raise funds for a new building. The Building on History campaign needed little justification. The Society has been in its present re-purposed building since 1984 and has filled it up with valuable historic materials. The new facility will expand the library and archives; provide support areas that are central to the research experience; and enhance our ability to engage many audiences with stories of people and forests. We have now raised over $4.7 million toward the $6.3 million project and aim to break ground in late 2017. The response from our leadership, staff, and the forest community has been nothing less than remarkable. Now we need all friends and members to step up and help us go the rest of the distance. Every donation counts. With your help, the next annual report will be written from the new headquarters.

We want you to know that the Society has a wonderfully talented, committed, and engaged board of directors. The FHS staff is unparalleled in their ability and passion to help others find and interpret forest history. With your continued support and investment many new achievements await and many new opportunities will present themselves. Your generosity fuels our ability to provide forest and conservation history to present and future generations. We are fortunate to have you with us. Again, thank you!

Chris Zinkhan, Chairman

Steven Anderson. Presiden

In April 2017, the FHS Board of Directors approved a $6.325-million goal for the Building on History campaign to construct a new facility. Co-chairs of the Building on History capital campaign Michael Kelly and Ned Phares reported gifts and pledges received of $4.6 million and an estimated $825,000 in funding from the sale of the Society's existing facility and donated construction materials.

The board also approved beginning construction in 2017. The new 16,750-square-foot facility will provide increased space for the Society's Carl A. Weyerhaeuser Library including dedicated research areas and critical space made available for the Alvin J. Huss Archival Program. New support areas will accelerate the Society's opportunities to conduct oral history interviews; process and digitize collections; and reach new audiences with outreach efforts. The Society's new home will be nestled on 8.6 wooded acres that were purchased from Duke Forest.

By June 30, 2017, 102 donors had made gifts and pledges totaling $4.735 million. FHS President Steve Anderson credits former board members Charley Tarver and Mark Wilde, honorary co-chairs of the Building on History campaign. Wilde and Tarver report that campaign support is strong among current and former board members, with their gifts and pledges totaling $1,587,959 so far. FHS board member and chair of in-kind donations Kent Gilges reports that the new FHS building, destined to be a point of pride for the forest and conservation community, has attracted a variety of companies to donate over $200,000 in construction materials.

The individual names of all donors making gifts and pledges of $5,000 and above will be recognized on a "wall of gratitude" in the new building.

The Langdale Capstone Challenge Tarley Langdale Jr. Foundation issued a momentous 1 by FHS raising $500,000

In May 2017, the Harley Langdale Jr. Foundation issued a momentous $250,000 challenge gift, which must be earned by FHS raising $500,000 in new gifts and pledges to the Building on History campaign by December 2018. Harley Langdale Jr. (1914–2013) was a forester, business environmentalist, and former chairman of The Langdale Company who grew the business from a small turpentine and land holding company into a fully integrated diversified forest products company. Harley valued the Society's work in preserving and helping people use the documents of forest history, and he and The Langdale Company have provided decades of support for FHS. We are calling on all donors to help us meet The Langdale Capstone Challenge!

ANNUAL GIVING

Annual gifts are the lifeblood of the Forest History Society. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 2017, 842 donors made Annual Fund gifts totaling $262,576.

Annual Fund gifts cover 40% of FHS program costs. Last year, annual gifts made it possible for the Forest History Society to:

- present the award-winning America's First Forest documentary to more than two million viewers on public television and the World Channel
- acquire 23 new archival collections
- host 15 scholars for average 3-day onsite research visits
- advance our work in creating the largest repeat photography database in the world
- create an all-new FHS website with modern design and mobile functionality

Simply put, the FHS Annual Fund helps make everything that happens at the Forest History Society possible. As Brooks Mendell—president & CEO of Forisk Consulting, FHS board member, and chair of the Development Committee—explains, "By bringing together gifts of all sizes from individuals, industry, and institutions, the FHS Annual Fund increases the power of each supporter to make a meaningful difference and enables the Society to achieve much more than would otherwise be possible."

LEADERSHIP GIVING CIRCLES

Donors whose annual contributions total $1,000 and above are welcomed into the FHS President's Circle in recognition of their role in helping to advance the work and mission of the Forest History Society. Members of the Society's leadership giving circles make it possible for FHS to save and preserve more historic collections and to bring these materials to life through educational programs, digital exhibits, books, films, and lectures.

President's Circle	$1,000+
Leadership Circle	$2,500+
Scholar's Circle	$5,000+
Director's Circle	$10,000+
Chairman's Circle	$25,000+

"I believe the greatest contribution of the Forest History Society is to make those of us in the industry, and the general public, aware of the pivotal role our forests have played and continue to play in the development of industry, metallurgy, ground and aerial shipping, telecommunication, and even nanotechnology commerce. We are glad to support FHS, and we appreciate the work you do."

Mike Smith RF, ACF, SAF Forestall Company, Inc.

FHS endowments offer perpetual support for preserving, collecting, and making our incomparable resources widely available. Ninety percent of our 23 endowed funds provide ongoing support for core FHS programs. The Society is honored to recognize The John R. McGuire Endowment among them.

THE JOHN R. McQUIRE ENDOWMENT

The McGuire family has a 32-year history with FHS, beginning with John McGuire, the 10th chief of the U.S. Forest Service. When John passed away in 2002, his wife Marjory made a bequest to establish the John R. McGuire Endowment in order to help maintain the FHS Oral History program and maintain the U.S. Forest Service Headquarters History Reference collection.

In April 2017, Marjory McGuire passed away at age 98. Their daughter Joan recently donated John's historic photographs, awards and medals, and personal papers to the FHS archives in order to provide others with a rare personal glimpse of this leader who was revered for his courage and humor. John McGuire was widely respected and admired.

Friends wishing to make donations in memory of John and Marjory McGuire may phone FHS at (919) 682-9319. For more information, visit www.foresthistory.org.

AMERICA'S FIRST FOREST DOCUMENTARY FILM

In 2016, FHS launched the one-hour film, America's First Forest: Carl Schenck and the Asheville Experiment, that explores the beginnings of forest conservation in North America through the lens of Carl Alwin Schenck and the Biltmore Forest School. Appealing to general audiences as well as forest managers, the film was broadcast over 1,200 times on public television stations in 43 states and the World Channel, having reached at least two million viewers to date.

For more information, see www.americasfirstforest.org.

Nominated for a 2016 Regional Emmy Award for best historical documentary and won the regional Emmy for best original music.

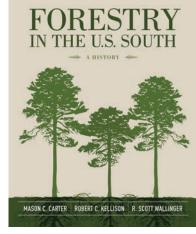

Actors portraying Carl Schenck and George Vanderbilt discuss forestry on the estate.

FORESTRY IN THE U.S. SOUTH

Co-published by FHS and LSU Press, Forestry in the U.S. South: A History offers a compelling story about how collaborative research in the 20th century by universities, corporations, and government increased forest regeneration and productivity throughout the southern forests.

For a complete list of 46 books and films available through FHS, visit www.foresthistory.org/publications.

REPEAT PHOTOGRAPHY RESEARCH PORTAL

With a grant from the MillsDavis Fund, FHS made significant advances on its "Repeat Photography for Sustainability and Working Forests" research portal, now the largest single database of before-and-after photographs, or sequences, depicting landscape change over time. Last year 879 photographs, 194 sequences, and 30 new collections were added to the portal (www.repeatphotography. org). They are some of the most visual educational materials FHS has to share with students, teachers, journalists, and many others.

Forty-five public, educational, and private organizations recently agreed to contribute photographs. FHS outreach efforts also generated significant publicity for the program through 26 partner organizations, publications, and library research guides.

VOLUNTEERS

The Forest History Society is grateful for the professional contributions of these individuals who donate their skills, expertise, and energy to essential FHS functions. Their efforts extend FHS resources for library, archives, and other programs.

Godha Raghavan, MLS Library Volunteer

Godha Raghavan has volunteered nearly 800 hours over six years to the Forest History Society. She has a Master of Library Science degree from Rutgers University and was a reference librarian at the Piscataway, New Jersey, Public Library before moving to North Carolina. Godha checks in and shelves new journals, magazines, and newsletters; catalogs new books; and enters citations into the FHS Environmental History Bibliography. The FHS Bibliography contains over 45,000 annotated citations to books, articles, and dissertations.

Sherrod McKenzie Development Volunteer

Sherrod McKenzie is cochief investment officer at Black Wall Street Investments, LLC, where he is responsible for strategic investments and fundraising. He helps FHS to identify new potential supporters and renew existing members, and in 2016 he served as an advisor to the new FHS website project. Sherrod has a B.A. in history from Furman University, and he has also worked as a derivatives analyst for Credit Suisse. His love of fishing and hiking drew him to the Forest History Society.

Christin Lampkowski Archives Volunteer

Christin Lampkowski is in the Masters of Library & Information Studies program at UNC Greensboro. She is processing FHS archival collections and creating Encoded Archival Description (EAD) finding aids. Christin has processed four important collections so far: the papers of Austin E. Klahn (U.S. Forest Service, Washington), C. Fred Landenberger (California Protective Forest Association), and John R. McGuire (10th chief of the U.S. Forest Service), as well as a special manuscript collection of Emmanuel Fritz (University of California).

The papers of John Clark Hunt, a writer who worked for the U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management in Nevada, California, and Oregon from 1930 to 1964. Hunt wrote hundreds of articles on forestry, and the history of the American West, plus fictional short stories.

RESEARCHERS & VISITORS

In addition to fielding thousands of phone and electronic inquiries each year, the Forest History Society's library and archives hosts dozens of on-site researchers. Here is a selection of recent visitors and topics.

Charlotte Leib Harvard University

One of the three 2016 Alfred D. Bell Travel Grant recipients, Charlotte Leib is in the Master of Landscape Architecture and Master in the History and Philosophy of Design programs at Harvard. She spent five days delving into the FHS archives, library, and photograph collection to advance her research project entitled "Surveying Sites Unseen: Trees, Representation, and Power in the 19th Century American Preservation and Conservation Movement." These FHS collections greatly expanded the scope of Charlotte's historiographic investigation. To read about the work of all recent Bell Travel Grant recipients, see www. foresthistory.org, Awards & Fellowships.

Lowell E. Baier, Esq. Conservationist, Historian, and Author

A 10-year supporting member of the Forest History Society, Lowell Baier visited FHS to use the U.S. Forest Service History Reference Collection, and the Society of American Foresters archival records, for an upcoming project on the Endangered Species Act. He led President George H. W. Bush's wildlife conservation agenda, and has advised successive administrations. In 2016, he published Inside the Equal Access to Justice Act: Environmental Litigation and the Crippling Battle over America's Lands, Endangered Species, and Critical Habitats. Lowell is a longtime member and the first president emeritus of the Boone and Crockett Club.

Emily Brock
Max Plank Institute

Emily Brock, a senior research scholar at the Max Planck Institute for the History of Science in Berlin, Germany, visited FHS to use the Weyerhaeuser Company collection for research on her upcoming book, Plywood Jungle: Transformations of Wood and the Globalized Asian Tropical Hardwood Industry, about the emergence of plywood as a commodity and the global industry shift towards the Asian tropics. Emily became familiar with FHS as a joint member with the Association for Environmental History and through her work teaching history at Georgia State University and the University of South Carolina.

Will Garrett Mundhenke Forest Historian, National Park Ranger

Will Mundhenke is a graduate student at the University of South Carolina and a ranger with the National Park Service. At FHS, he researched the history of El Yunque National Forest in Puerto Rico. Will's work examines the role played by the U.S. Forest Service in promoting recreation, American tourism, and notions of Edenic landscape in the Caribbean tropics. Also in 2016, El Yunque National Forest made the cover of Forest History Today magazine, and its unique terrain, diversity, beauty, rare species, and management policies were featured in Char Miller's "History on the Road" article.

Kathryn Newfont University of Kentucky

A five-year supporting member of the Forest History Society, Kathryn Newfont visited FHS to conduct research for her new project related to the history of the Monongahela National Forest. She is an environmental historian at the University of Kentucky with research interests in the U.S. South and Appalachian Studies and author of Blue Ridge Commons: Environmental Activism and Forest History in Western North Carolina. Kathryn served as an historical advisor to the Forest History Society's 2016 documentary, America's First Forest: Carl Schenck & the Asheville Experiment.

David Benac Western Michigan University

A joint member for nearly 20 years, David Benac visited FHS to conduct research for his manuscript, "Town for Sale: Oregon's Timber Industry Heritage." He is an associate professor of history at Western Michigan University with research interests in the American environmental movement of the late 20th century and the heritage and history of the timber industry in culture and landscape, especially in the Pacific Northwest. Seeking historical information about his 13 Oregon case-study communities, David used the archival records of The American Tree Farm System and the Weyerhaeuser Company collection.

Li Li Beijing Forestry University

Li Li spent an academic year at FHS as a visiting scholar. An associate professor at Beijing Forestry University, Li Li is a scholar in history of ancient Chinese forests, with a B.A. in language and literature, a master of education, and a PhD in botany. She is director of the Forestry History Research Centre, and secretary-general of the Forestry History Branch of the Chinese Forestry Society. Li Li went through volumes of research materials at FHS, and her work also included a field tour to South Carolina for an indepth look at a recovery of at-risk ecosystems, soil changes, and watershed experiments, which were of great interest because the Calhoun Research Site has a "sister site" near Yingtan, China.

John Matel Virginia Tree Farm Foundation

A member of the FHS President's Circle, John Matel is a recently retired diplomat who served in Brazil, Norway, Poland, Iraq, and the U.S. His interests include forestry, ecology, conservation, and energy. In addition to serving as the president of the Virginia Tree Farm Association, John is a landowner who manages nearly 500 acres of Virginia forest for timber, wildlife, and water quality. His current project is the study of southern pine ecology, and restoring longleaf and shortleaf ecosystems into working landscapes. John visited FHS to use the archival records of the American Tree Farm System and the American Forest Institute as well as the Society's historic photograph collection.

AWARDS

FELLOWSHIPS FHS FELLOW AWARD

The Forest History Society awards program enables the Society to recognize research and writing in forest and conservation history and to stimulate further research into our understanding of the relationships between people and forests. The following are this year's award recipients.

Jakobina Arch Leopold-Hidy Award

Jakobina Arch, assistant professor of history at Whitman College, received the 2016 Leopold-Hidy award for her essay, "Whale Meat in Early Postwar Japan: Natural Resources and Food Culture," which links the concerns of food history with environmental history. The Forest History Society and the American Society for Environmental History annually present the Leopold-Hidy Award to honor the best article in the Environmental History journal.

Chris Boyer Charles A. Weyerhaeuser Book Award

Chris Boyer received the Charles A. Weyerhaeuser Book Award for Political Landscapes: Forests, Conservation, and Community in Mexico, Duke University Press, 2015. Boyer is a history professor at the University of Illinois, Chicago. This is the first major history of Mexico's forests and the impact of the revolution on forests and rural woodlands communities. The Charles A. Weyerhaeuser Book Award honors superior scholarship and fresh insight in forest and conservation history.

Phil McKenna John M. Collier Award for Forest History Journalism

Phil McKenna's article, "Life in the Death Zone (also known as The Boys Who Loved Birds)," is an epic story of two nature-loving friends on opposite sides of the Iron Curtain. One award judge noted: "Exceptional storytelling here, covering decades in the lives of two individuals who were passionate about conservation and the environment." The Collier Award recognizes one author annually for the best article about forest and conservation history that is published in newspapers, trade publications, or general circulation magazines.

Erik Loomis Theodore C. Blegen Award

Erik Loomis's article, "When Loggers Were Green: Lumber, Labor, and Conservation, 1937-1948," was published in the Western Historical Quarterly. It is the story of the International Woodworkers of America challenging the timber industry's forestry practices, in an attempt to create long-term sustainability of logging communities and forests in the Northwest. The Blegen Award recognizes one author annually for the best article about forest and conservation history published in a journal other than Environmental History.

Nickolas Perrone The 2016 Walter S. Rosenberry Fellow

Nickolas Perrone is a graduate student in the history department at the University of California, Davis, with a research focus on the convergence of labor and the environment. He received the 2016 Rosenberry Fellow award for his project, "Hemlock Democracy: Nature and Capitalism in the Leather Industry, 1812–1911," which focused on leather tanning during the 19th century and its effect on eastern hemlock forests.

David Grace The 2016 F. K. Weyerhaeuser Fellow

David Grace completed a dual-Masters of Divinity from Duke and a Masters of Environmental Management from the Nicholas School of the Environment. He received the 2016 Weyerhaeuser Fellow award for his project, "The Sacred Groves of India's Independence: Revisiting Tradition with Forest Conservation in India's National Capital Region, 1864-2016," which focused on urbanization and forest preferences of four groves in India.

FHS Fellow Lucy Jones with Steve Anderson at the Society's 70th anniversary dinner.

Recognizing her many years of outstanding sustained leadership to the Society, the FHS Board of Directors unanimously approved Lucy Rosenberry Jones as Fellow, the Society's highest honor. The award was presented at the 70th anniversary dinner held at the Minnesota History Center, where FHS began in 1946. Jones' late brother Walter S. Rosenberry III was also a previous recipient of the FHS Fellow award.

Jones, an FHS member since 1980, was elected to the FHS board in the fall of 2004 and served through 2010. During her tenure she served on the nominating committee, awards committee, and the development committee. She was also on the steering committee for the Stories of the Forest campaign, under which several new FHS endowments were established, including the Lynn W. Day Endowment for Forest History Publications and the Alvin J. Huss Endowment for Digitization and Outreach of the Archives. Jones continues to be involved with the Society, providing counsel, financial, and moral support. She was instrumental in helping to establish the Walter S. Rosenberry Fellowship in Forest and Conservation History that annually supports work of a graduate student in North America.

OUR VALUES

We believe in...

- the continuity and interconnectedness of forests and human events and that knowledge of the past provides insights to guide the future.
- bringing the lessons of forest history to bear on the complex social, ecological, economic, and political forest policy issues of today.
- preservation of records of historical significance, and maintaining their quality and integrity to serve present and future generations.
- scholarship and the importance of applying intellectual skills to advance excellence in the study, analysis, and interpretation of forest and conservation history.
- sharing information and knowledge among all interested in forests and conservation, and contributing to a public enlightenment about the values that forests have had for mankind.
- partnerships and the ensuing synergy among those who wish to support, preserve, study, and apply our heritage of forests and conservation; and our responsibility to contribute to an international network of interested citizens.
